fashion blog BAG SNOB

verify the new IT BAGS.

It's been said their bag recommendations are akin to a priest's blessing, and their unabashed reviews can make or break a bag and the brand behind it. Who better to drop by and answer the burning question:

"If you only bought ONE bag this season, which would it be?"

KELLY Cook

I see a lot of bags. So for me to narrow my choices down to ONE lonely bag is almost impossible. But this Zagliani Large Puffy Bag in python skin ($3,165 at brownsfashion.com) is my clear favorite. The shape is classic and ladylike but the puffiness makes it show-stopping. I love python for the texture but also for the natural skin pattern, which a lot of designers tend to gloss over. It's splashy yet still very refined.

Céline's Luggage Tote in leopard pony hair ($2,500 at 305.866.1888) is a timeless neutral that goes with absolutely everything.

Not since the Chloé Paddington have we seen such frenzy. We first reported on it last March and it's become the most sought after bag in the fashion world and in Hollywood. The credit is due to my personal hero, Phoebe Philo. We sobbed when she abruptly left Chloé to focus on her young family and when news of her taking over the helm at Céline broke, we danced with glee knowing the return of Phoebe meant the return of It bags! Not the kind of trendy It bags that pass with the change of the season, but the kind of bag that makes us weak in the knees and causes us sleepless nights until we possess It. I'm so in love with my new bag that I have not parted with it since it arrived. ♥

Treasure FOUND!

Get hip with punchy, ripped bags that are chic, EDGY, BUT NOT OVERLY CUTESY.

We first crossed paths with pint-sized Treasure Madonna five years ago in Houston, when word traveled about the nomadic-natured creator of hyper-cool, tattered clutches. Since then, she's gone Hollywood, setting up shop in L.A. and dabbling in online fashion and entertainment reporting. We're crazy about her hip, washed, shredded lambskin clutches, almost as much as her refusal to pick just one career hustle!
